

Summary of the Helix Reviews (via LULU) on each of The 7 Books of God

Writing Style Information

Each of our writing style results range from 1 to 100, with 50 being the average for that metric across all the books in the Book Genome database. This means that a number above 50 on any given metric means that your manuscript has an above average amount of that particular DNA element. A number below 50 means the opposite. As always, this isn't good or bad - there's no reason to think that having more Dialog than is typical for an average book is better or worse than having less Dialog, for example.

Writing Style Information	Return Bk1	Scrolls Bk2	Spirit Bk3	End-time Bk4	Eternity Bk5	Bride Bk6	Presence Bk7
Motion	4	16	13	4	8	5	7
Density	18	14	14	42	39	36	40
Dialogue	27	65	75	57	55	51	54
Description	6	9	9	10	12	12	16
Pacing	96	65	42	64	59	66	69

Motion: refers to the level of physical motion in a scene or book.

Density: measures the complexity of the text. Text with high density will take longer to read than text of equal length with low density.

Dialog: dialogue represents the amount of spoken text between two or more characters in a scene.

Description is the amount of descriptive language that the author uses.

Pacing refers to the layout of the text on a page. A scene with high pacing will have characteristics that quickly move the reader's eye down the page.

Themes – Story DNA from Each Book

The data below compares the Themes of the 7 books and the % a Theme is present.

For example, if your top theme is Angels and the bar is nearly 90% full, that means that your book contains more Angels than 90% of books that have Angels present. Even amongst Angel books, you'd have a lot of Angel.

(Note: calculated 'Filled' bar length as a % of the whole bar; '/' reads as AND/OR)

Themes – Story DNA from All Books, From Christian Books and His 7 Books

Now let's look at the use of your themes by other books on the market. This is useful in understanding your potential competition, and developing a clear understanding of what makes your work distinctive. Are you using a theme that is unique to your genre? For example, 41.88% of Fantasy novels contain Medieval Weapons & Armour, compared to only 4.13% of books in other genres. This section helps you understand what other authors are publishing, and what differentiates your work.

Comparable Titles: Motion, Density, Dialogue, Description, Pacing

Next, we'll look at all books on the market that are similar to yours, also called Comparable Titles. If your book were published today, we'd likely suggest it to fans of the books listed below. There are two groups of Comparable Titles: "All Genre" and "In Genre." The titles below are 'All Genre' Comparables, which means that we're suggesting any title that we consider to have similarities, regardless of whether it matches your chosen genre.	At the same time, it can be useful to narrow the scope to only books targeting a similar audience, and look specifically at the titles inside of your genre. These 'In Genre' comparables for Christianity are below. (Colour coding indicates multiple selections of a title; * indicates title selections of author Kay Arthur)

Keywords in the 7 books of God

The keywords below are selected by comparing your writing to the word makeup of the entire Book Genome database. We compare the words in your book to how other writers use them, and then identify which words are distinctively yours. It is not a frequency count, but a measure of the words you use proportionally more often than other authors. They are uniquely your words, at least in the context of this manuscript.

The keywords you see here help to separate your writing from other works on the market.

When marketing your writing – whether to a potential reader, future editor, or agent - knowing what differentiates your book from the competition is critical to your message.
